In the following question, by 'inheritance tax' we mean taxes that are paid on the total value of someone's estate (including property, possessions and money) once they have passed away. Currently in the UK the inheritance tax threshold is £325,000. This means people inheriting £325,000 or more are required to pay tax at 40% on anything over that amount.

To what extent would you support or oppose the Government...
